

Robert Andrews Millikan

(March 22, 1868 – December 19, 1953)

Robert Andrews Millikan was an American experimental physicist honored with the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1923 for the measurement of the elementary charge and for his work on the photoelectric effect.